

Voluntary Framework of Accountability Data Collection Cycle 2022

Six Year Cohort (Fall Students 2016)
Two Year Cohort (Fall Students 2020)

Presented to Central Community College's
Board of Governors, February 2024

By Dr. Candace Walton

Data prepared and verified by Central's Department of Institutional Effectiveness

Evidence of Student Success:

Today we are looking at the following success measures:

- Central's students compared to IPEDS national average.
- Central's students who arrive with a planned program/career direction completion rate.
- Central's students who are exploring higher education and then transfer completion rate.
- Complex variable involving student enrollment behavior.

WHAT THE VFA MEASURES

- Outcomes for the Six Year Cohort: including any awards received (with and without transfer), Transfer (no award), Persistence (still enrolled)
- Two-Year Cohort Progress Measure: including retention fall to next term, Successful completion of credits: 1st term; by end of year two # of total credits completed with a C grade (C-, C+) or better by the cohort, Reached credit threshold by end of year two # of students in the cohort that earned 24 credits (part-time) or 42 credits (full-time), and overall persistence.
- Developmental Education Progress Measures: including distribution of developmental need by cohort, attempted remediation, and successful completion of remediation and migration to College level courses.

Summary

- Central's students continue to outperform IPEDs national average.
- Central's students who arrive with a planned program/career direction complete their program in shorter time and higher rate.
- Evidence of the pandemic and economic changes may be appearing in the data (see "no success in first term" line slightly higher on slide #9).
- Central's students who are exploring higher education and transfer out achieve high success rates.
- Student enrollment behavior has changed over the years and Central remains a flexible, reliable, and local option for our community.
