Local Challenges & Legislative Solutions: A Casual Conversation

Local school boards are called upon to govern the implementation of many state and federal level education initiatives. Engage in informal conversations with other board members in your region about state and federal laws that impact your local community. Discuss obstacles to local control of instruction, and generate ideas for reform that may be put forward as floor resolutions to be considered at CASB's Delegate Assembly on Oct. 12 to shape CASB's legislative agenda.

SB 213 and Initiative 22: What Does it Mean for School Boards?

Get the latest insights on the income tax increase ballot initiative to support SB 213 and raise one billion new dollars for Colorado's public schools. We'll discuss the implications of SB 213 and the opportunities CASB members with differing views have to participate in active conversations with CASB and other stakeholders. Additionally, we'll discuss how districts will be impacted by the new per pupil funding model, and address concerns with the proposed new funding requirements of Amendment 23.

Harnessing the Power of School Board Leadership

Serving as an advocate for public education in your community is crucial to preparing the students in your school district for today and tomorrow's world while respecting your community's needs and values. Join CASB's President Matt Cook, your regional CASB Board of Directors and CASB staff for small and large group conversations about leadership challenges in local issues and state policy. Identify concrete steps individual boards can take to lead through these challenges and exercise the local control entrusted to elected school board members by Colorado's Constitution.
