RE: Explanation of Expenses

Attached is a request to be reimbursed $60.41. I felt an explanation was needed.

As part of my leadership philosophy, I like to reward/award outstanding performance or recognize an employee's long term service. To do so through commercial means is tremendously expensive. A life-saving award, matted and mounted in a frame, cost more than $300. That cost, for a single incident, is too much.

My wife Linda purchases inexpensive frames at Hobby Lobby and does the work herself. I have used these frames to recognize stellar performance for Beatrice PD personnel who went out of their way to help us with computer issues, recognition of 20 years of service to the PD, a going-away and recognition for service award, etc.

This modest cost allows me to continue recognizing multiple important contributions to the department for far less than a single award done at a specialty shop.
